2:00pm – 4:00pm	Workshop 1 (English)	VOICE MATTERS: STEREOTYPES AND CONSEQUENCES OF SOUNDING 'GAY' Fábio Fasoli, University of Surrey (United Kingdom) Summary People have expectations about how gay people sound. These expectations are based on so called 'gay voice' stereotypes. Such stereotypes are present in media representation of gay people, they are endorsed by all sorts of people, and they play a role in everyday interactions with gay people. But what does it mean to sound 'gay'? What are the consequences of sounding 'gay'? These are some of the questions that researchers have tried to answer. This workshop will offer an overview of the literature on this topic, include a conversation about the interdisciplinary nature of this phenomenon, and will involve a discussion around open research questions and ways to deconstruct 'gay voice' stereotypes. Aims <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To provide an overview of the literature on 'gay voice' stereotypes and their consequences • To facilitate a discussion of open research questions and interventions • To encourage interdisciplinary collaborations 	Room 307

A história individual contém sempre uma componente arquetípica, e sempre que alguém conta uma história, ela é também a história de todos e todas. Neste workshop serão exploradas ferramentas do Teatro Playback, uma forma de teatro que parte das narrativas pessoais e as devolve, de forma improvisada, resignificando-as. Através da exploração da escuta empática, da expressão artística e da ressonância, iremos desenvolver competências pessoais e profissionais para trabalhar com minorias. Pré-requisitos: não é preciso ter experiência prévia em teatro. 4:00pm – 6:00pm	Workshop 3 (English)	'SHOW ME' AND 'TELL ME WHAT HAPPENS NEXT': CHILDREN RAISED IN NON-TRADITIONAL FAMILIES' ATTACHMENT REPRESENTATIONS Fernando Salinas-Quiroz, Eliot-Pearson Department of Child Study and Human Development, Tufts University (United States) Summary A core aspect of attachment theory is concerned with the role of caregivers as a secure base from which infants can organize their behavior, derive security, explore, and learn about the environment. It has been suggested that the notions of event schemas and scripts could be used to conceptualize the study and development of mental representations of attachment -i.e., internal working models-. Moreover, that an individual's history of secure-base support is represented in the memory as a Secure-Base Script (SBS). Since there is some evidence that children raised in traditional families organize information obtained from participating in attachment relationships as a SBS, and research teams interested in non-traditional families have either interviewed children, assessed children's perception of security, or evaluated parent-child' interactions through observations, the Attachment Story Completion Task (ASCT; Bretherton, Ridgeway, & Cassidy, 1990) offers a glimpse into caregiver-child communication and co-construction processes about significant attachment related themes. This workshop introduces attachment theory, non-traditional families and attachment, as well as the ASCT and its coding system.	Room 309

Posteriormente, apresentaremos um conjunto de dados provenientes da literatura científica sobre as vivências conjugais de gays e lésbicas, tentando simultaneamente dar a conhecer alguns estudos empíricos realizados em Portugal sobre este tema.
